

Infertility

Infertility is defined by not being able to get pregnant after having deliberately timed, unprotected sex for one year. Men as well as women are just as likely to be infertile, so it is important for both partners to undergo testing. Causes of infertility can include factors like disease and aging. Infertility and other reproductive problems can usually be treated with drugs and modern procedures.

Click on the links below to find out more.

Evaluating Infertility - <https://www.acog.org/Patients/FAQs/Evaluating-Infertility>

Treating Infertility - <https://www.acog.org/Patients/FAQs/Treating-Infertility>